LONDON — What do Priyanka Chopra, Cher and Princess Diana have in common? They've all been dressed by Elizabeth Emanuel. While her name is most often mentioned in the same sentence as the late princess, there's a lot more to Emanuel than the famous, 25-foot-long wedding gown she created with her then-husband David Emanuel.

In the years since that iconic wedding dress, Emanuel has kept rather quiet, working on a variety of retail projects, designing for the theater and building up a high-profile clientele for her one-off designs. Now she's launching a couture line named Elizabeth, Paris 1902.
